

Walter Munz 50 years with BAHMÜLLER

Walter Munz began his training as a mechanic at the age of 15, laying the foundation for his impressive career at BAHMÜLLER. As one of the most influential employees, he played a key role in the construction of the first BGM Container Line in 1982. He is particularly noted for his outstanding knowledge of process engineering.

In his responsibility for mechanical assembly, he was and is an important contact for all technical issues. As the first discussion partner for our technical office, he gets to the bottom of every problem analytically until the cause is found and a solution is worked out. This approach is crucial for solving complex tasks and serves as valuable guidance for our young skilled workers.

In his leading positions, Mr. Munz has shaped the development in the field of corrugated board processing and is therefore a central component of BAHMÜLLER's success.