

Welcome on Board! 16 new trainees at BAHMÜLLER

BAHMÜLLER is investing in the future and is taking on a total of 16 new apprentices in 2024 in order to actively counteract the shortage of personnel and skilled workers that the economy will increasingly face in the future. This brings the total number of trainees to 41.

The training focuses on IT specialists, industrial mechanics as well as electrical and electronic specialists. Some of the young trainees are trained additionally in cooperation with Klingele Paper & Packaging SE & Co. KG - Wellpappenwerk Grunbach in order to optimally prepare the junior staff for the future tasks of our customers in the corrugated board processing industry. According to CEO/Michael Holtmann, the availability of qualified and committed specialists is one of the most important resources for the future, in which we have been actively investing for several years.
